Citizens of Hallsville,

I am communicating with you about my feelings during this trying time. I have each and every one of you in my prayers and hope that you are well. This Coronavirus is weighing on all of us but I know we will not allow it to break our spirit, decrease our faith or decimate our values.

My personal view of our wonderful community is that it is built on faith in God, family values and our care for one another. I firmly believe that we will make it through this time because of our strength as a community. This is an opportunity to show our concern for our neighbors.

- If you know of someone in need, help if you can. If you can't help, contact City Hall and we will help you reach out to the right organization for help.
- Call or text people you are concerned about and let them know you care.
- Show your concern for your neighbors by practicing social distancing guidelines.
- Support your local businesses. Restaurants are still offering pickup. Stores and gas stations are still open and need your support.
- Follow the President's and CDC's hygiene guideline to help keep you and your loved ones safe.
- "And whatever you ask in prayer, you will receive, if you have faith." Matthew 21:22
Remember the power of prayer!

Out of an abundance of caution, City Hall has a restricted entry. However, City employees are at work and may be contacted by phone or email. The City Park is closed. Our Public Works Department and Police Officers are still diligently working to make sure the everyday needs of the public are addressed and that our City remains safe and orderly.

I personally thank our City Council for their dedicated leadership. Council members are Gary Lovelace, Guy Walker, Brant Cain, Charlie Hunt and Lauren Bresch. They do an excellent job for the City of Hallsville!

Sincerely,

Mayor Jesse Casey
